The "Orto" in Georgia.

An indignant Georgia farmer sent this inquiry to the Atlanta Constitution: "One of them city ortomobiles killed my bull, and I don't know what number it was. The number of the bull was branded to him, but that don't do me no good. What I want to know is: Can the state give me the number of the orto? Hit was a red one, with a white man in it and going like hell, so to speak."—Philadelphia Ledger.

SLAP AT MODERN TEACHING

Most People Will Understand Just What Moral This Anecdote Is Intended to Point.

"Now, teachers," said the bright pupil, "attention, please. Remember that we have only six weeks to skim through this textbook besides getting a smattering of a dozen other subjects. I will now proceed to write a sentence on the blackboard."

One of the teachers held up his hand.

"Please, pupil, let me write that sentence. I want the practice."

The bright pupil frowned.

"My dear sir, that is dead against our rules. We give you as little actual drill as possible, trusting upon our own lengthy explanations and the superb quality of our text-books to burnish your minds."

"But, dear pupil," said another thoughtful-looking teacher, "I have been looking over these text-books and they are not at all good. They bear the dog-eared marks of commercialism and monopoly in the making. Every author who writes one has only the most superficial knowledge of his subject. Why not use some of the old, tested books? I—"

"Tut, tut! If you persist you'll be sent to the office, where the superintendent will talk to you kindly about your moral nature for at least five minutes. Remember, you must all love your school."

At this moment the gong rang, and the bright pupil said:

"Period is now over. Now you can go out and play, according to the latest schedule prepared by the National Pupils' Association for the Advancement of the Group Tendencies in All Teachers."—Life.

ESKIMOS NOT KEEN TRADERS

Will Give Anything, No Matter the Value, for What Takes Their Fancy at the Moment.

Among the Eskimos of the Bering sea region, there is no fixed value for whalebone, furs or anything they may have to trade. If one of them has anything of value, he will keep it until some white man appears with something that appeals to his eye. And the money value of what may take him does not make any difference to him. If he has a trinket that may be worth a dollar, and some one offers to give him for it something that is worth a thousand dollars but of which he has no need he will refuse to trade. But he will give anything he possesses for what he really wants.

An Eskimo of St. Lawrence Island, in Bering sea, made a catch one season of a big bowhead whale. The head of belemn was worth between ten and fifteen thousand dollars. He knew the approximate value of the head, but he held on to it with no apparent desire to trade. One day a trader appeared with a small gasoline launch, valued at perhaps two or three hundred dollars. The sight of that so took the Eskimo that he straightway traded his head of bone for it.

Far out in the straits one day he ran out of gasoline. He abandoned the launch for the canoe he was towing and paddled back to the island. But he did not regret his trade. He was satisfied, and ready to try for another whale.—Youth's Companion.

Inspiring Battle Pictures.

The Crimean war inspired many wonderful battle pictures, one of the most pathetic, perhaps, being "The Return from the Crimea," painted by Sir Noel Pkton, showing the return to his cottage of a corporal of Fusilier guards with an empty sleeve, head bandaged and a twelvemonth's beard. He sits with closed eyes, while his wife kneels at his feet and clasps his waist. Prints of this picture are to be seen in thousands of homes throughout England.

Of naval battle pictures, perhaps the most notable is that which illustrates the famous incident of the battle of Copenhagen, when Nelson refuses to see the signal of recall, painted by Thomas M. Hemy, the famous marine artist. The painting is one of the most inspiring sea pictures which have ever been exhibited.

Masculine Loyalty.

The family consists of two small children and their devoted parents, and of the latter papa usually helps the small boy to bed, mamma taking care of the small girl. Occasionally, however, something takes papa away from home in the evening and mamma does double duty. After one such experience young Philip confided to his father the true and deep-seated reason why he preferred masculine assistance in regard to saying his prayers.

"Mamma's all right, of course, for a lady," he generously conceded, "but you see, father, God's a man, and you're a man, and I'm going to be a man, so I suppose it's natural for us to stick together."

The Civic League

will present the drama

"THE PASSING OF THE THIRD FLOOR BACK."

next Thursday, Dec. 10th. Very infrequently is such an ambitious play attempted by amateurs. However, the League already is assured of success.

Within twenty minutes after the arrival of the director who will stage the play, the cast was at work. Miss Olive Kackley of Chicago, has been engaged by the League to direct the production. The cast was selected finally on Thursday, Dec. 3rd. Miss Kackley makes a specialty of putting on plays in one week's time and next Thursday the people of Hays will see "The Passing of the Third Floor Back."

The League was fortunate in securing the direction of Miss Kackley. During the past season she has coached over one thousand amateurs in theatricals. This will be the fifteenth cast she has trained in this one play. At Hill City, Miss Kackley has staged five different plays. She has also put on amateur productions at Plainville, Stockton, WaKeeney, etc. Miss Kackley was the director of the Topeka High School play and at Monmouth, Ill. She has also appeared on Kansas Day programs, this alone bespeaks her ability. In an interview at the parlors of the Windsor hotel one was impressed with her dynamic personality. The cast is an amateur cast. The complete cast and announcements will appear next week.

Safest is Cheapest.

Sunday, Nov. 29, has been designated by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, as "Tuberculosis Day," and all the churches throughout the United States have been asked to join with the association in an educational campaign against this disease.

The tubercle bacilli was discovered by Dr. Koch, 32 years ago, and the entire civilized world has been waging war on it ever since. The United States is spending twenty million dollars annually fighting this germ and has reduced the death rate thirty per cent.

Pasteur says "It is within the power of man to cause all germ diseases to disappear from the Earth." It is now known to the medical world that bovine tuberculosis is communicable to man and that two per cent of the adult population of the United States have tuberculosis contracted in this way. Before federal quarantine was placed on the dairy section around Chicago, many of the tubercular dairy cattle were shipped to Eastern Kansas and even to this part of the state. May not some of them be furnishing your milk? Few dairy cows here have been tested and a test is the only proof.

While we know there are many other important factors entering into the production of safe milk the tuberculin test is essential. A dairyman who contends that a test is not necessary, is either ignorant on a subject that should be a part of his preparation for the dairy business, or he is using cows he is afraid to risk testing. Testing part of a dairy herd and leaving the more doubtful looking ones untested is no test. Better learn how tubercle bacil is disseminated and you will know that this is no protection whatever. Then too, what protection is a tuberculin test to you if your dairyman buys a large per cent of his milk from other sources. We are not pretending but have papers clearing every cow in our herd and we sell milk from no others.

We still have every right to claim the richest market milk in Hays; the cleanest market milk in Hays, and the only market milk in Hays that can be guaranteed free from tuberculosis.

When people insist on getting their milk at a price below the cost of producing sanitary milk they are encouraging dirty, unsafe milk. Those who under-sell us do so not because they can produce milk cheaper, but because they do not put into the business the work required for first-class milk, and their milk is inferior. The quality of milk is not a matter of personal opinion or sentiment but science.—Woolridge Dairy.

Coyote With a Bell.

Possessed of a sense of humor, a cattleman living near Walnut Grove, Ariz., when he caught a coyote, instead of shooting it, tied a bell about its neck and let it go. It is said that the sound of the bell drove away the other coyotes.

Who Wrote the Constitution?

It is generally understood that James Madison was the chief author of the Constitution of the United States. Beyond a doubt the great instrument was the joint product of the entire convention, but from the best accounts Madison was the man who put it into shape as we have it today.

Keep Ham Moist.

Boiled ham is a most useful and popular dish, but it is inclined to get hard and dry when stored. To prevent this, spread over the cut portion with a thin layer of butter, then with a layer of flour paste and the ham will keep beautifully moist.

A Christmas Kodak

To those who believe in buying gifts of lasting quality, we suggest Kodaks. Kodaks appeal to people of all ages, but especially to the young.

Better buy one good, wholly desirable gift of this kind than a dozen lesser ones.

Picture-taking is a fascinating diversion. It gives one a new insight into nature. It develops the artistic sense. It provides a sort of pictorial history of one's life.
